2.	Describe the aspects of strategic and tactical planning.
	ANS: a. Strategic planning is the process of determining the organization's primary objectives and adopting appropriate courses of action. b. Strategic planning has a critical impact on the organization's destiny because it provides long-term direction for decision makers. c. Tactical planning guides the implementation of activities specified in the strategic plan. d. Tactical plans are usually shorter in duration than strategic plans, focusing on current and near-future activities that a firm must complete to implement the larger strategies.

3.	How does planning differ at various levels of organizational management?
	ANS:
	 a. Top managers spend more of their time engaged in strategic planning than managers at middle and supervisory levels. b. Middle-level managers tend to focus on operational planning involving creating and implementing tactical plans for their own departments. c. Supervisory personnel engage in developing daily and weekly programs for meeting the goals in their areas of responsibility.

4.	Distinguish between an organization's mission and its objectives. Provide an example of each.
	ANS: An organization's mission is its essential purpose that differentiates it from other organizations. An example of a mission statement is, "To be regarded as the quality and market leader of the hotel industry worldwide."
	Objectives are organizational goals and guide development of supporting marketing objectives and plans. Well-conceived objectives should state relatively specific intentions. An example of an objective is, "To attain a 20 percent share of the market by 2010."

5.	Explain the difference between a first mover and second mover strategy. Give examples of companies that have followed each strategy.
	ANS: The first mover strategy is based on the notion that the company that is first to offer a product in the marketplace will be the long-term winner. An example of a successful first mover is eBay. The second mover strategy, on the other hand, is based on the notion that the best way to gain advantage in the marketplace is to closely observe the innovations of first movers and then improve on them. Microsoft is famous for adopting a second mover strategy.

6.	Define SWOT analysis. Why would an organization undertake a SWOT analysis of itself?
	ANS: SWOT analysis is an important strategic planning tool that assists planners in their planning task. a. SWOT stands for strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats. The analysis provides a critical view of an organization's internal and external environment. b. The analysis allows planners to match the firm's internal strengths with external opportunities to secure organizational leverage in the marketplace. c. It further assists the firm in recognizing internal weaknesses that might prevent capitalizing on opportunities, which would constrain its activities. d. SWOT analysis aids in the identification of environmental threats to the firm's strengths that could lead to vulnerabilities. e. Finally, SWOT analysis helps spot internal weaknesses that environmental threats might attack, which would present the firm with problems.

7. What is a strategic window? Give an example of a strategic window that exists today.

	ANS: A strategic window is a limited period during which the key requirements of a market and the particular competencies of a firm best fit together.
	The growth of China has increased the number of strategic windows as that country's demand for products increases. The auto industry, in particular, is facing a strategic window as the demand for automobiles rises in the Chinese market.

10. What is a marketing mix? In order for a product to succeed, what can be said about the variables in the product mix?

ANS:

The marketing mix variables—product, distribution, promotion, and price—combine to satisfy the needs of the target market. Product is a broad concept not only encompassing goods, services, and ideas, but also including the satisfaction of all consumer needs with respect to the relevant goods, services, or ideas. Distribution refers to getting products to consumers in the right quantities, at the right place, and at the right times. Promotion is the communications link between buyers and sellers. Pricing deals with the means of setting justifiable and profitable prices.

Successful products have a marketing mix in which all variables are on target. Great pricing, product, and promotion mean nothing if the customer cannot find the product. Lack of promotion could leave a great product gathering dust on retail shelves.

11. What does a distribution strategy involve? Define two marketing channels.

ANS:

Marketers develop distribution strategies to ensure that consumers find their products in the proper quantities at the right times and places. Distribution decisions involve modes of transportation, warehousing, inventory control, order processing, and selection of marketing channels. Marketing channels are intermediaries that may be involved in a product's movement from producer to final consumer. Two types of marketing channels are wholesalers and retailers.

12. How do elements of a marketing environment affect marketing decision making?

ANS:

- Marketers do not make decisions about target markets and marketing mix variables in a. a vacuum. They do these things in a dynamic environment.
- The competitive environment includes anyone or anything with which the firm competes for a potential customer's discretionary purchases.
- The political-legal environment, including laws, regulations, and power balance within the firm, must maneuver successfully to protect its own and, to some extent, society's well-being.
- d. The economic environment deals with the health and success of the relationship between supply and demand in a given economy, and of its components.
- The technological environment refers to the uses of science and engineering in a society. The ability of a culture to adapt to new technology is crucial to its development.
- Finally, the social and cultural components of the environment certainly affect its "survivability." How well people interact is a strong measure of cultural survivability.

14. Describe the market share/market growth matrix.

ANS:

The market share/market growth matrix places business units into a four-quadrant chart that plots market share—the percentage of the market the firm controls—against market growth potential. Stars are units with high market shares and high growth potential. The firm should invest more funds for future growth. Cash cows are units with high market shares but low growth potential. They generate strong cash flows that should be used to finance the growth of stars. Question marks are units with low market shares but high growth potential. The firm needs to watch these units carefully, making prudent investment decisions. These units typically use more cash than they generate. Dogs are units with low market shares and low growth potential. These units are least attractive and the firm should consider withdrawing.
