112. What is meant by selective incorporation? Give an example.

ANSWER: Selective incorporation is based on the concept that only fundamental rights in the Bill of Rights should be applied to the states. An example of that is the right to an attorney, which is one of the rights contained in the Bill of Rights, that was selected by the U.S. Supreme Court, to apply to the states through the Fourteenth Amendment due process clause.

113. Define the concept of judicial review and give an example. Do you agree or disagree that the courts should have the final say on what the Constitution means?

ANSWER: Judicial review is the power of courts to declare law or acts unconstitutional. Marbury v. Madison was the first example, where the U.S. Supreme Court found an act of Congress unconstitutional. I agree that the courts should have the final say on what the Constitution means because the courts are often less influenced by the heat of the moment partisanship.

114. Define the doctrine of stare decisis and how it works. How does it relate to judicial precedent?

ANSWER: Stare decisis means to abide by or adhere to, decided cases. The judicial practice of stare decisis leads to judicial precedent, meaning that decisions of courts have value as precedent for future cases similarly circumstanced. These terms are often used interchangeably because they vary only slightly in meaning. The principle of stare decisis ensures predictability of court decisions, whereas judicial precedent is a process courts follow as a result of stare decisis. Judicial precedent is made possible by stare decisis.
