Short Answer Questions

61. Why is the concept of "Adjusted Gross Income (AGI)" important?

The concept of "Adjusted Gross Income (AGI)" is important because many deductions and credits reported on the tax return are computed based on the amount shown as AGI. Furthermore, when a taxpayer's AGI exceeds certain levels, certain tax benefits are reduced or eliminated.

David and Martha were divorced on December 31, 2013. Can they file their 2013 income tax return using married filing jointly? Why or Why not? What other filing status choices do they have, if any?

No, David and Martha must file as single because they were divorced on December 31. According to the IRS, marital status is determined as of the last day of the tax year. They might be able to file as head of household if certain qualifications are met, including maintaining a household that is the principal place of abode of a qualifying person for more than half the year.

67. A taxpayer can claim a dependency exemption if the person is a qualifying child or a qualifying relative and the person meets three tests. List the three tests this person must meet.

The three tests that this person must meet to be claimed as a dependent are:

- 1. Dependent taxpayer test.
- 2. Joint return test.
- 3. Citizen or resident test.

Difficulty: 1 Easy Learning Objective: 02-04 Calculate dependency exemptions. 68. List and describe the five tests that a person must meet to qualify as a qualifying child.

To be a qualifying child, the person must meet five tests:

- 1. Relationship test.
- 2. Age test.
- 3. Residency test.
- 4. Support test.
- 5. Special test for qualifying child of more than one taxpayer.

The relationship test is met if the dependent is one of the following: child or descendant of child; stepchild; eligible foster child; or brother, sister, half-brother, half-sister, stepbrother, or stepsister, or a descendant of them.

The age test is met if, at the end of the year, the child is under the age of 19, under the age of 24 and a full-time student, or totally and permanently disabled regardless of age. After 2008, the child must be younger than the person claiming the dependency.

The residency test is met if the child lived with the taxpayer for more than half of the year. The support test is met if the child did not provide more than half of his or her support. The special test for qualifying child of more than one taxpayer applies if the child meets the other four tests and can be the qualifying child for more than one taxpayer. In this case, only one individual can claim the exemption.

69. List and describe the four tests that a person must meet to qualify as a qualifying relative.

To be a qualifying relative, the person must meet four tests:

- 1. Not a qualifying child test.
- 2. Relationship or member of household test.
- 3. Gross income test.
- 4. Support test.

The not a qualifying child test refers to a child who is the taxpayer's qualifying child or the qualifying child of another person, who cannot be claimed as a qualifying relative by the taxpayer.

The relationship or member of household test is met if the person is related to the taxpayer (child or descendant; stepchild; eligible foster child; brother, sister, half-brother, half-sister, stepbrother, stepsister or descendant; father, mother; brother or sister of parents, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, father-in-law, mother-in-law, brother-in-law, or sister-in-law) or a member of the taxpayer's household for the entire year.

The gross income test is met if this person does not have income equal to or greater than the amount of the exemption ($3,900 for 2013).

The support test is met if the taxpayer provides over 50 percent of this person's support.
