Questions for Class Discussion

1. Over its long history Hinduism has demonstrated remarkable religious tolerance and flexibility, even to the point of advocating polytheism, monotheism, and monism all within a single religion. What are the implications of having such a flexible religious system? What are the advantages and disadvantages?
2. Many reformers from within and outside of the Hindu tradition have called for changes in the status of women, yet the traditional ideals of womanhood remain firmly entrenched in Indian society. To what extent is it possible and/or legitimate to tamper with social-religious practices and norms that date back thousands of years?
3. In the various strands of Hinduism we see an optimistic outlook on life and a pessimistic, world-denying outlook. Why do you think both of these outlooks are present in the religion? Can you see a similar mixture of positive and negative in any other world religion and/or philosophical system?

Essay Questions

26. Explain how Hinduism has reconciled the “affirmative way” in religion—the way of moving toward unconditioned reality through devotion to the divine images and ideas— and the “negative way”—the way to God by taking away all that is not God, all lesser images and ideas. Give examples of each way from the reading.
27. Discuss the view of human life indicated by Hinduism's four goals and four stages of life.
28. Present the main features of Vedic religion: its worldview, its gods, the inner meaning of its sacrifices, and how it set the stage for the development of later Hindu philosophy and religion.
29. Discuss the Hindu philosophical tradition known as Vedanta. Explain the ideas of Shankara and the ways in which Ramajuna later challenged his system. Discuss the thinkers in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries who keep this system alive and present it to the world as the essence of true Hinduism.
30. Discuss the ways in which Hinduism has led to the subjugation of women in Indian society, and the ways in which Hinduism, past and present, contains resources for the empowering of women and fostering egalitarian status for them.
